About HVZ

HVZ was founded in 2005 by 3 training consultants and friends, Danny Hizami, Gary Vaillancour and Felicia Zigman who, after years of working on their own, realized that together they can make an impact in the corporate world that they never could have done on their own. HVZ is a firm that provides clients with customized services that improve performance, enhance relationships, and increase creative and “out of the box” thinking in the workplace. HVZ takes great pride in their unconventional classroom style—and providing participants with a truly unique and forward thinking experience.

HVZ begins every project with two guiding principles:

Adults learn best when they don't realize they're learning.

Strive to be like a great film; continue to inspire long after the credits roll

Popular Workshops

Improv in the Workplace

The Writing Gig

A Business Writing Workshop

Like most of HVZ's trainings, The Writing Gig is not your conventional business writing course. Yes, we do discuss the basics; constructing business letters, writing as a process, email management and how to write for maximum impact, but we don't stop there! We know that skill building is important, however we also believe that most people lack the foundation and confidence to express themselves with written words. Because of this, we incorporate many principles and exercises from writer/motivator Julia Cameron's work (“The Artists Way”; “The Right to Write”) to help learners begin to build their writing muscle and confidence in their writing abilities. This course, which is almost entirely interactive—includes small and large group activities, peer coaching, and individual assessments and skill building.
